THE LAST BASTION OF RACISM? Gypsies, Travellers and policing

John Coxhead

For the first time we are taking a skills based approach to driving racism out of the police service rather than a training approach which could never work. The Last Bastion of Racism is a definitive text to help move the agenda forward to focus on skills, ensuring we have public confidence from all communities in justice.

Dick Winterton, Chief Executive, Skills for Justice

This book deals with prejudice, specifically the neglected area of prejudice towards Romany Gypsies and Irish Travellers. It sets out a problem solving approach at both practitioner and strategic levels that has proved to overcome bigotry in many of its forms and help achieve greater social justice.

John Coxhead has drawn on his extensive research with practitioners, strategic workers and the communities to highlight the issues for and about Travellers. He provides an analytical but practical approach that will be a toolkit for those working in public services to improve service delivery.

As the definitive text for understanding the approaches and strategies by which racism towards a certain community can be effectively tackled, the book will be indispensable to practitioners in public services, particularly criminal justice and policing. It will also interest sociologists and the communities themselves.

Dr John Coxhead has worked for ten years as a police Gypsy and Traveller Liaison Officer. He is the British adviser to the Association of European Law Enforcement Officers in Budapest; advisor to the UK National Centre for Citizenship and the Law and visiting research fellow at the Centre for Educational Research and Professional Practice at University of Derby.

Foreword by Patrick Delaney and Peter Mercer, MBE.
